Training a neural network model to automatically detect and classify solar array faults based on patterns in their sensor data. (soiled, degraded, shading etc)

- Sensors provide 10 data features to the neural network
- Objective: Use dimensionality reduction techniques to identify the most important features for training the system.