Everyone is impacted by machine learning through devices we use on a daily basis.

We explored how biased training data can affect a color sensor.

This will aid in understanding the importance of data collection.

The effect of various offsets on the red, green, and blue classes was explored.