Python Automation for colorimetric coloration of Iron sensors

- To achieve instant and highly accurate results from iron sensors using Python image detection.
- Python code that automatically finds the sensing area and performs color analysis.
- This automation process significantly reduces the time required for each sensor reading, which typically takes 10 minutes when done manually with Excel and by hand.
- The code can also be expanded to use for other colorimetric sensors.